BRATTLEBORO:
FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1899.

The exact deficit in the federal revenue for January was $9,347,840, and the deficit for the fiscal year to date is $92,807,- 983. The war with Spain has been over for several months, but army expenses in January were nearly four times what they were a year ago, and navy expenses are 60 per cent larger.

The press report of the final debate which preceded the ratification of the treaty of Paris on Monday says: "Senator Ross of Vermont read a brief written speech announcing his intention to support the treaty as in the interest of peace. He entered somewhat into the legal questions involved, saying that he saw no obstacle in the way of ratification from that source."

J. W. Sault, who has been connected with the editorial management of several Vermont newspapers, has been engaged as editor of the Bennington Banner. The Banner has deteriorated greatly since it was sold by C. A. Pierce, its long-time publisher, about a year ago. Mr. Sault is one of the most capable newspaper men in the state and if the managers of the Banner will give him carte blanche he will make a paper which will be a credit to the town.

The Burlington Free Press reviews editorially at some length the prompt action taken by the business men of Brattleboro to assure the rebuilding of the S. A. Smith & Co. plant, and closes by saying: "This is the sort of public spirit and push that counts, and the progressive citizens of Brattleboro are to be congratulated upon the possession of these characteristics. Brattleboro deserves to win in her efforts to promote her own industrial development, and it is to be hoped that her enterprise may become contagious throughout Vermont."

The corporators of Brown university elected Dr. James Munroe Taylor president of that institution Wednesday. President Taylor graduated from the University of Rochester in 1868 and from the theological school there in 1871. He was pastor of churches in South Norwalk, Conn., and Providence, R. I., until 1886, and since that time has been president of Vasar college. He was a strong man in the pulpit and in college has taught mental and moral philosophy. As a college president he has shown executive ability and has been particularly successful in raising funds. Rochester university gave him the degree of D. D., and Rutgers college that of LL. D.

Pious Montpelier and Barre residents are not remembering in their prayers the company owning the railroad connecting the two cities, and the ungenerous are using it as a target for their surplus epithets. When the road was first opened it was patronized largely and the builders were looked upon as public benefactors.
During this winter it is said that the company has been losing $25 a day. In an effort to make both ends meet the fares were doubled, and it is claimed that other provisions of the charter were violated. Several persons who paid the old fares were ejected from the cars and they have brought test suits against the company, hoping to have the original rates restored.

The 57 votes in favor of confirming the treaty of Paris were given by 40 Republicans, 10 Democrats, 3 Populists, 3 Silver men and 1 Independent. The 27 votes in opposition were given by 22 Democrats, 2 Republicans (Hoar of Massachusetts and Hale of Maine), 2 Populists and 1 Silver Republican (Pettigrew of South Dakota).
The ten Democrats who refused to follow Senator Gorman's lead, and came to the support of the treaty were Faulkner of West Virginia, Gray and Kenney of Delaware, Lindsay of Kentucky, McEnery of Louisiana, McLauren of South Carolina, Morgan and Pettus of Alabama and Sullivan of Mississippi. Seventeen of the 25 Democratic votes cast against the treaty came from states south of the old Mason and Dixon line.

The MacMillan company have begun publication of Bird-Lore, a bi-monthly magazine edited by Frank M. Chapman, and devoted to the interests of observers of birds. Nearly every prominent American writer on birds-of-the-woods will contribute to its pages. The initial number, bearing date February, 1899, has for a frontispiece a full-page half-tone engraving showing John Burroughs in his summer retreat at "Slab-Sides," and the opening article, "In Warbler Time," is by this veteran and always delightful writer on out-door life. The magazine will be an invaluable aid to all who are taking up the study of birds.

Dr. D. K. Pearson of Chicago continues his helpfulness to colleges. Drury college at Springfield, Mo., which had previously received $50,000 from him, was recently given $25,000 more toward a $50,000 science hall fund, if the college would secure the other half from other sources.

wrong, for one to ask what other he could have done than he has done since the Senate forced his hand and compelled him to declare war against Spain last April.
Events entirely unforeseen followed each other during the summer with startling rapidity, and President McKinley and his cabinet met each as it came according to the best light that was given them, and in the only way that these events could be met. What else, or better, or different, could the wisest and most zealous member of the opposition have done?

This is a fair question. When it has been successfully answered the average American citizen may perhaps begin to listen with some degree of patience to the dire prophecies of woe with which a chosen few, to whom alone is given the gift of omniscience, have filled and are filling the air.

The Peace Treaty's History.

Spain's first overtures for a treaty of peace were received by the United States government on Tuesday, July 26. The peace protocol was signed by Secretary Day for the United States and M. Cambon for Spain on the 12th day of August. Immediately thereafter the President proclaimed an armistice and hostilities ceased.
According to the terms of the protocol the government of the United States and of Spain each appointed five commissioners to meet at Paris and negotiate a final treaty of peace. On August 26 President McKinley named as the American commissioners William R. Day (chairman), Senator Cushman K. Davis, Senator William P. Frye, Whitelaw Reid and Justice Edward D. White. Justice White afterward declined to serve, and Senator George Gray was appointed on September 9.

The commissioners left New York on September 17, and arrived in Paris 10 days later. The first joint session of the commissioners for the two governments was held on Oct. 1. For over two months almost daily sessions were held, at which propositions and counter propositions were exchanged, until finally the diplomatic contest was ended by the signing of the treaty by the commissioners of both powers on December 10.

On Jan. 4 the treaty was transmitted to the Senate by the President, and it was ratified by vote of the Senate Monday, Feb. 6.

It yet remains for the treaty to be ratified by the Spanish Cortes, and signed by the Queen Regent. It is expected that this will take place during the present month.

Hoyt, the Playwright, Has Collapsed.

Charles Hoyt, whose humor has moved thousands to mirth, is a physical and mental wreck. He has been, probably, the most successful writer of comedies of this generation, and he has accumulated a fortune, estimated as high as a million dollars. It is believed that his public career is ended, and his life is trembling in the balance. His last play, "A Dog in the Manger," was put on the stage at Washington recently, but it proved a flat failure and will not be presented again. Hoyt is a young man, still in the 30's, and while brilliantly successful from one standpoint he has also drunk the dregs of bitterness.
His first wife, Blanche Walsh, a pretty and accomplished actress, died suddenly at Boston a few years ago. His second wife was Caroline Miskel, one of the most beautiful women on the American stage. She died last October, and the child born to her only a few hours before her death, died also and the two were buried at Charlestown, N. H., Hoyt's birthplace, where he has always had a summer home. The death of his wife, the failure of his last play and other troubles brought about Hoyt's final collapse. He is now at the Arlington hotel in Washington, but he is to be taken to the far South by his attending physician, in the doubtful hope that he may retain his hold on life. The news of Hoyt's condition will be received with sorrow by many friends in Vermont and New Hampshire. Hoyt began his career as a reporter on a local paper at St. Albans.
He has always scattered his riches with a free hand, and at Charlestown he has been a favorite with all classes of people. He represented Charlestown in the New Hampshire legislature a few years ago, and had one of his theatrical companies come from Boston to give a performance before the solitons at Concord.

THE NEW S. A. SMITH CO.

Stock Company with $100,000 Capital, $40,000 of Which Will Be Held by Small Holders—Plans for Incorporation—What Was Done at the Citizens' Meeting on Wednesday Evening.

The rebuilding of S. A. Smith & Co.'s factory and the continuance of the company's business in Brattleboro is assured. At a meeting held in Festival hall Wednesday evening a proposition submitted by the firm was unanimously accepted, and it was decided to go on at once to have the stock legally subscribed, and to take immediate steps for the incorporation and reorganization of the new company.

A meeting was held in Festival hall Wednesday evening to hear the report of the committee—L. F. Adams, C. A. Harris and W. H. Brackett—appointed to receive subscriptions for the formation of a new company to carry on the S. A. Smith & Co. business. The hall was well filled.
Col. Hooker called to order and C. F.
Thompson, the secretary, read the committee's call for the meeting. L. F. Adams then read the committee's report:

An hour's informal discussion followed upon various points which were raised.
Questions were asked about the "patenta-biography" mentioned in the report, and about the ownership or use of other such machines as might be invented in the future. Mr. Brackett said he understood that the company had about 25 special machines, the invention of Chas. A. Smith.
It was not the policy of the company to patent such machines because they were for the company's private use, and the company did not wish to make them public property. It was said by others, in a general way, that if Mr. Smith should invent other such machines the inventions would doubtless be his own private property, but that, beyond question, they would be used, as in the past, exclusively for the company's benefit.

With regard to salvage on the engine, boiler, lumber, and goods, or stock, saved from the fire, it was stated that none of these was included in the real estate assets to be turned in by S. A. Smith & Co. The lumber on the grounds was probably worth $10,000. This and the other property mentioned had a distinct value which was to be determined by the new company when it had been formed under the provisions of the laws of Vermont. The manner of formation of the company was explained by Col. Haskins.

The question was raised as to whether individual holdings of stock would be taxable. It was answered that they probably would be if they had a value above the company's reality, but the question was hardly worth discussing, since there is no doubt that the town would vote to exempt the company from all taxation for a term of years.

At this point Dr. Holton suggested that the real purpose now was to aid and induce S. A. Smith & Co. to rebuild, and resume their business. The facts were before the meeting and he moved the adoption of the report. The motion was carried unanimously.

The only other point discussed was on the question of giving the original firm of S. A. Smith & Co. the privilege of buying the stock subscribed by citizens. Mr.
Brackett had previously said that Smith & Co. had suggested that it would be agreeable to them if the citizens' stock was taken with an agreement giving S. A. Smith & Co. the privilege of redeeming it at any time within five years, with interest at say 4 per cent from Jan. 1, 1900. Smith & Co. did not ask this; they had simply intimated that they might like to have this done. S. B. Emerson wanted a standing vote taken to see if it was the wish of the subscribers present to make an agreement of this kind. Dr. Holton, Col. Haskins, and others objected, on the ground that it was a matter for each individual subscriber to settle between himself and the company when he took his stock, and that it was not fair to ask subscribers to make any public pledge in advance.

W. H. Vinton brought this part of the discussion to an end by the suggestion, briefly and pointedly made, that the original purpose of this movement was to express sympathy for S. A. Smith & Co. and to induce them to continue their business here. Nobody in Brattleboro wanted to make a dollar out of the firm. All that was wanted was to have them go on with their business in the old way, under their own management.

This declaration was received with a hearty round of applause. A little later Mr. Emerson withdrew his motion for an expression from the stockholders when it was explained to him that Smith & Co. would not wish to have any public pledge or expression in the matter of redeeming the stock.

E. H. Thomas asked if further subscription to the stock would be received. In answer the committee said that what Smith & Co. would like would be an even
